2. A new secret agent has asked Ausable's opinion on the traits they should be looking for in a person filling in his shoes. Create a conversation between Ausable and the new agent about indispensable traits that a secret agent must have.

New agent: Monsieur Ausable, you have been famous as a committed employee in our department. I have also heard a lot about your quick wiliness, intelligence and hard work. But when I saw you I was really surprised to see your simple way of living. Please guide me by throwing some light on the traits a secret agent must have.

Ausable: Well! Being a secret agent may not match the glamorous and flashy images from movies and television. Spying is often a low-key, tireless and thankless endeavour. However, it is certainly not for those who lack commitment or the joint of heart. One needs to develop a number of practical and risk- averse characteristics for spying. As a spy, you need to have keen senses and develop them further through training in how to collect and evaluate vital information. Also, you must have a natural adaptable and high functioning ability to interact with others. While doing so, it is essential that you keep your composure and be able to work independently. You see appearances are deceptive. You need to have a clever mind and be witty to become a successful secret agent.

3. Give a character - sketch of Ausable highlighting his presence of mind and intelligence.

Ausable is a different kind of secret agent. Generally secret agents that are described in detective books and shown in films are very smart and fun-friendly. Wine and dark-eyed beauties are associated with them. However Ausable doesn't present such a romantic picture. He is very fat and sloppy. He lives in a small room at the sixth floor. Fowler is disappointed after meeting Ausable.

They say that appearances are often deceptive. This is quite true in case of Ausable. Physically, he may be fat but mentally he is very agile and quick witted. He knows all the tricks of his trade. He is very quick to react and can cook up stories that may fit in all kinds of situations. He convinces even the crafty Max that there is a balcony below the window of his room. This is a well thought out trap and Max unwittingly falls into it. Then he cooks up the story of the police. He again succeeds in convincing Max that the loud knockings at the door are that of the police. He tells Max that the loud knocking at the door are that of the police. He tells Max that he himself has sought the protection of the police as he has the important report concerning some new missiles with him. In this way, he gets rid of his rival and enemy Max who jumps out of the window only to cry for the last time in his life.

4. Presence of mind and intelligence are more powerful than a gun. How far is it true in case of Ausable, the secret agent?

Ausable is actually not of that kind as we read in detective stories and books. Nor is he like the heroes of James Bond films. Ausable is an exception. The young writer Fowler is disappointed after meeting Ausable. Ausable does not fit any description of a secret agent. He is fat and sloppy. His room is rather small and that too on the sixth floor. However appearances are generally deceptive. Ausable proves that presence of mind and intelligence are more powerful than a gun.

Presence of mind and intelligence are the assets of Ausable. His sharp reaction, particularly to a dangerous situation is very quick and thorough. When he finds crafty Max in the room with a pistol in his hand, he at once understands the purpose of his visit. The rival secret agent, who has come to take away the important report that concerns with some new missiles, must be outwitted and defeated in his own game. Ausable cooks up the stories of the balcony and the police so convincingly that Max falls into his trap. While there is no balcony below the window of his room. The knockings at the door are not of the police but of his waiter. The confused and unnerved Max jumps out of the window in desperation. Thus through his presence of mind and intelligence, Ausable proves himself more powerful than a gun.

5. How did crafty and foxy Max fail to take away the all important report concerning some new missiles from Ausable?

Or

How did Ausable outsmart and outwit the crafty Max and got rid of him?

Naturally, it was a fight between two secret agents belonging to two different organisations. The bone of contention was the all important report concerning some new missiles. It was with Ausable and Max wanted to take it away by the use of his gun. The report was so important that several men and women had risked their lives to get it. Someday that report might well have affected the course of history.

No doubt, Max had come prepared. When Ausable switched on the light, he found Max standing halfway across the room with a small automatic pistol in his hand. Ausable had to use his presence of mind and fertile brain to outwit Max. His cooking up of two stories related to the balcony below his window and the police, were his masterstrokes. In his simple way, Ausable succeeds in convincing Max that both the stories were true. Actually there was no balcony below his window. He wanted to unnerve Max by planting the false story that the loud knockings at the door were of the police. In desperation, Max jumped out of the window and Ausable got rid of his crafty rival forever.

6. Sometimes, appearances can be very deceptive. How does this statement prove with his story?

Yes, it is true that sometimes we fail to identify the real personality of a man due to his different appearances. So, it can be said that appearances can be deceptive. Fowler was young and romantic. He was a writer of adventurous stories. Ausable was a secret agent - a detective. He faces danger in his work. So, Fowler wanted to meet him for some adventurous stories. But when he met Ausable in a French hotel with a damp corridor, Fowler felt disappointed. But Ausable proved himself after reaching his room. A man named Max was found inside Ausable's room with a gun in his hand. Ausable at once proved that he possessed quality of a true detective. He told Max about a balcony next to the window, and police at the door.

Max believed him because Asuable's way of talking was so real.

Thus, we find that sometimes appearances can be deceptive.
